Kuehne + Nagel selected for aftermarket parts logistics by leading aerospace manufacturer

- Multi-year contract for warehousing and fulfillment of Pratt & Whitney engine parts in Atlanta, GA.
- Leveraging KNPS lean methodology to increase efficiency and foster continuous improvements

Jersey City, NJ / USA, November 7, 2018 – Kuehne + Nagel announced a new multi-year contract with Pratt & Whitney, a division of United Technologies Corp. (NYSE: UTX). Under this new agreement, Kuehne + Nagel will manage a 300,000 square foot military and commercial aftermarket spare parts distribution center in Atlanta, GA. The operation supplies aftermarket parts to Pratt & Whitney's customers all over the world. Kuehne + Nagel is committed to assisting Pratt & Whitney in increasing logistics efficiency and improving overall customer satisfaction of its parts delivery.

Quality, safety, and precision are paramount to Pratt & Whitney. With responsibility for the receipt, warehousing, and inventory control of over 40,000 aircraft engine parts, the Kuehne + Nagel team will leverage its KNPS lean management methodology to drive efficiencies. Processes undergo regular analysis to enable cost reduction, cycle time improvements, and exceed Pratt & Whitney's established performance guidelines.

Since 2017, Kuehne + Nagel has been operating a production logistics operation for Pratt & Whitney in West Palm Beach, Florida, to support its production plant. This latest contract is another step towards business expansion and strengthening the relationship.

"We are extremely honored that Pratt & Whitney selected us once more to manage their spare parts in the US and we're committed to meeting their strategic goals", said Bob Mihok, President Kuehne + Nagel North America. "It's also great to see that our team's dedication to providing quality, value driven solutions and excellent service to customers has been rewarded with this additional business."
